Description:

A clever take on this familiar childhood wish features an unexpected twist sure to surprise and delight school-age readers. When the television weatherman predicts a big snowfall, the narrator gleefully imagines the fun-filled possibilities of an unscheduled holiday from school. But when the family wakes up the next morning, they are in for a disappointment. No snow! As the family members pile into the car so they won't be late for school, an unexpected twist reveals who wanted the snow day most of all. Adam Gustavson's expressive illustrations comically capture the excitement of pure possibility in author Lester Laminack's thoroughly original tale.

This is a sweet story about a possible snow day at school. Since I teach along the Texas Gulf Coast, we rarely see snow. When we had an ICE day, I read the book to my 5th graders and they loved it. Laminack writes wonderful stories and the illustrations are amazing. Another book by Laminack, which I highly recommend is SATURDAYS and TEACAKES. Both books are good mentor texts for grades 3rd -5th.
